THANK YOU LISA MANDELKERN!

The DAPC would like to thank Lisa Mandelkern for her five years of service as the Program Coordinator. She was instrumental in finding and providing educational presentations and critical themes for curious photographers. The programs were communicated to Club members in a well-organized format. The quality of the programs has been partially responsible for the growth in Club membership. Lisa, we thank you and wish you well in your future endeavors.

Also in the blue ribbon category are: Jim Rodgers, Michael Chastain, Bob Peticolas, Catherine Lucas, Cathy Day, Tom Devine, Tabatha Rossman and Robert Kitcey. More than a hundred photos were evaluated by judges Paul Schrantz, Mike Kmetz, Storm Sermay, Frank Gomez and Linda Bernhardt. Photography judge Paul Schrantz commented that the quality of the photos has improved dramatically over the past five years with so many good photos.

The print and digital competitions are an integral part of the club's yearly programs and are designed to foster participation in club activities and encourage old and new members to exchange ideas on photography. Educational programs are held on the first and third Tuesdays at Southwest Environmental Center, as well as photo field trips and beginner Saturday workshops. For current activities and more information see www.daphotoclub.org or Facebook.

2016 PHOTOGRAPHER OF THE YEAR

BY JULIE SCHMITT

For the THIRD time in four years, LISA MANDELKERN has been chosen the 2016 Photographer of the Year by the Dona Ana Photography Club. The award is based on the quality and excellence of her photos submitted throughout the year in 3 quarterly print competitions and the digital Photo of the Year contest. Lisa has consistently created outstanding photos with high artistic and technical content. Her background in art and art history, plus her natural enthusiasm for exploring new digital photographic topics, has made her a master at her craft. She has been the DAPC's Program Chair for the last five years and frequently gives illustrated lectures on how to create better photos. One of Lisa's night sky photographs is currently on the cover of the new NMSU Library 2017 Calendar.

Her photo titled "A Time Before the Latest" won the DAPC Members' Choice Award and was created using HDR by combining 3 photos with different light exposures to capture all of the details perfectly, including the outdoor landscape.

scene: “This photo was taken in Germany at the Beuren open air museum. There, one can visit about ten or so historic farmers’ houses from the Southwestern region of Germany. The houses come from different counties, and were reassembled stone by stone at the museum site. Each house is slightly different, but most have one thing in common. Everything a family needed was gathered under one roof: living quarters, barn and life stock stable. The photo shows a kitchen in one of the farm houses. This kitchen bears a striking resemblance to a kitchen my family had in the late nineteen-fifties. The sink, faucet, dishes, furniture and tablecloth are the standard of the day. Things were simple, practical and built to last. Our kitchen was well used. Breakfasts, lunches and dinners were prepared by my mom from scratch every day. In the afternoon, we kids would do our homework at the kitchen table. My memories are sketchy at best, but they look a lot like this photo: it is summer and the kitchen is filled with mellow light and with wonderful aromas.”
